Fun For All

Learn about beach and all-terrain wheelchairs, sensory rooms and adaptive sports – they're just a few of the ways the USA accommodates people with different abilities.

Everyone is Welcome

The USA welcomes visitors of all abilities, ensures appropriate access to attractions and facilities throughout the country, and allows memorable experiences for everyone. The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) provides guidance for making public places accessible to all, regardless of physical or mental impairments.

FLY DOWN THE SLOPES

Organizations across the USA including High Country Adaptive Sports in Flagstaff, Arizona, and Outdoors For All in Seattle, Washington, provide a variety of equipment and specialized training to help skiers and snowboarders with disabilities enjoy the freedom of zipping down a mountain. In summer, head out on a handcycle mountain bike ride.

ACCESSING MEMORIES

Like many memorials and monuments, the 9/11 Memorial & Museum in New York City accommodates people with disabilities in a variety of ways. An ASL video tour is available with the audio guide, verbal description guided tours are available and visitors can borrow manual wheelchairs. The names on the memorial are embossed or cut into bronze, so they can be read tactilely.

TAKE ME OUT TO THE BALLGAME

Tropicana Field in St. Petersburg, Florida, home to Major League Baseball's Tampa Bay Rays, is equipped with a sensory room – a quiet space where people who feel overwhelmed can take a break. These spaces are becoming more common at U.S. sports venues, which may also offer sensory bags and, for people with mobility issues, wheelchair transport services.

Morgan's Wonderland in San Antonio, Texas, was built from the ground up to be totally inclusive and wheelchair accessible. Children with and without disabilities can play on wheelchair swings, enjoy the view from a Ferris wheel and explore the park on a 1930s-style train.

FEEL BEACH BREEZES

Visitors with mobility issues can borrow wheelchairs with fat tires at many U.S. beaches, making it possible for them to roll on the sand and into the surf. At some beaches, Mobi-mats stretch from parking areas toward the water's edge, smoothing the way for wheeled vehicles.

ACCESSIBLE PARKS

Borrow a track wheelchair at a Georgia state park, then head out exploring the woods beyond paved paths and boardwalks. Power all-terrain chairs, which are free for people with disabilities to borrow at 10 Georgia parks, are also available at parks in Michigan, Kansas, Minnesota and other states.

STAGECOACH TRAILS GUEST RANCH

Horseback riding is at the heart of many dude ranches, and at Stagecoach Trails Guest Ranch in Yucca, Arizona, guests with mobility issues can enjoy it as well, thanks to ramps that allow for easy horse mounting and dismounting. Homecooked meals, campfires, a petting zoo and fully accessible accommodations are among the other amenities.

OFFICIAL U.S. TRAVEL INFORMATION

Review helpful tips and online resources for international travelers.

BEFORE TRAVELING TO THE UNITED STATES

Every visitor entering the United States from abroad needs a passport. Passports from many nations must be valid for at least six months longer than your intended stay in the United States. However, citizens of certain countries enjoy an exception to this policy and need only ensure that their passport is valid for the duration of their trip. Before traveling to the United States, some travelers may also be required to obtain a nonimmigrant visa. Visit the Department of State website at travel.state.gov for passport and visa requirements.

The Visa Waiver Program (VWP) enables eligible citizens of certain countries to travel to the United States for tourism or business for stays for a maximum of 90 days without first obtaining a visa. Any traveler holding a passport from a Visa Waiver Country who is not in possession of a nonimmigrant visa may apply for an Electronic System for Travel Authorization (ESTA) at <https://esta.cbp.dhs.gov>.

An ESTA is not automatic and may be denied for a variety of reasons. Travelers are advised to apply for an ESTA well ahead of their anticipated trip in the event that a visa is required. In some cases, individuals who are found ineligible to travel to the United States under the VWP may be eligible for a visitor's visa to the United States.

If you are a citizen of a country determined by the Secretary of State to have repeatedly provided support for acts of international terrorism – see state.gov/state-sponsors-of-terrorism – you may be ineligible for Visa Waiver Program travel to the United States. For more information on the VWP, please refer to cbp.gov.

WHAT IS A VISA?

A United States nonimmigrant visa is a document that allows visitors to travel to the United States by any means of transportation and to request permission to enter the United States from a U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) officer at an airport, land border or seaport.

WHO IS REQUIRED TO HAVE A VISA?

Foreign nationals entering the United States are required to present a valid visa issued by a United States consular official unless they are: (1) a citizen of a country participating in the Visa Waiver Program (traveling under the Visa Waiver Program with an ESTA); (2) a lawful permanent resident of the United States; or (3) a citizen of Canada or other visa-exempt location.

Please visit travel.state.gov to learn more about visas, the Visa Waiver Program and passport requirements. For more CBP travel information, go to cbp.gov.

EN ROUTE TO THE UNITED STATES

Your airline will provide you with necessary support entry documents when you travel to the United States.

CBP ONE™ APPLICATION

The CBP One™ application serves as a single portal for travelers and stakeholders to access a variety of CBP services. Through a series of guided questions, the app will direct each type of user to the appropriate services based on their needs.

Currently, travelers can utilize CBP One™ to apply for provisional I-94s prior to arriving at a land border crossing. The I-94 serves as a traveler's proof of admission, and the app collects information and facilitates the payment of a $6 fee in advance, saving valuable time at the port of entry. Travelers who apply for their I-94 ahead of time will experience faster processing times to expedite entry. Travelers can also quickly access their current I-94 submission to view critical information such as how long they can remain in the U.S., and they can use it for proof of visitor status once in the United States.

CBP One™ is also available for air travelers to provide advance information regarding the need for an inspection of biological and agriculture products, including for those that typically that require permits, for live pets or for sanitation of footwear. The advance information will be reviewed by CBP prior to arrival and should expedite the traveler's inspection upon arrival.

For more information, travelers can go to cbp.gov/about/mobile-apps-directory/cbpone.

ENTERING THE UNITED STATES

Upon entry to the United States, you must go through U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) for immigration and customs processing. CBP inspections may be in person with an officer or at an entry kiosk.

U.S. citizens and visitors to the U.S. are required to make a declaration orally or in writing, including the articles and agricultural and wildlife products that they are bringing into the United States.

CBP has further secured and enhanced the identity verification process using facial biometrics. When arriving at U.S. airports during international travel, passengers pause for a photo at the CBP primary inspection area. In a matter of seconds, CBP's biometric facial comparison service will automatically compare the new photo of the traveler to images that the traveler has already provided to the government, such as passport and visa photos.

With the enhanced Simplified Arrival process, foreign traveler identities are confirmed with biometric facial comparison technology, and they may no longer need to provide fingerprints if they are return travelers. The facial biometrics process is secure and efficient and protects the privacy of travelers. For more information, please go to cbp.gov/biometrics.

The facial biometrics process is voluntary for U.S. citizens. If a U.S. citizen participates in the process, the photos are purged from the systems upon identity verification. U.S. citizen photos are not retained.

PASSPORT CONTROL

At Passport Control, first-time foreign travelers will submit their fingerprints electronically, and a photograph will be taken as part of their travel record. Fingerprints, photos and other biometrics help establish and verify travelers' identities and travel documents. You may be asked questions such as whether you have enough money for your visit (a credit card is a smart precaution), and when and how you will be leaving the United States (bring a copy of your itinerary). Single parents and guardians traveling with a child under the age of 18 should have proof of legal custody.

FORM I-94

Non-United States citizens requesting admission to the United States with a visa will no longer be given a paper Form I-94 to complete. I-94 information is now available online at cbp.gov/i94, where travelers can retrieve their electronic I-94 number and print a copy of the form.

MOBILE PASSPORT CONTROL (MPC)

U.S. and Canadian B1/B2 citizens arriving at select locations can use the CBP Mobile Passport Control app. Mobile Passport Control allows eligible travelers to submit their passport and customs declaration information through a free, secure app on their smartphone or other mobile device.

The use of MPC is free and does not require pre-approval. Travelers who use the MPC app may experience shorter wait times, less congestion and more efficient processing. For more information, visit cbp.gov/travel/us-citizens/mobile-passport-control.

BAGGAGE CONTROL

Next, gather any baggage and enter baggage control. Depending on the port of entry, baggage may be picked up before seeing a CBP officer. Also, most travelers who are transiting will need to collect their baggage, clear CBP and recheck the bag to their final destination.

GUIDELINES FOR BRINGING ITEMS TO THE UNITED STATES

As a routine matter, U.S. Customs and Border Protection may search your belongings even if you don't declare anything. To help you move speedily through the CBP process, visit cbp.gov/travel/clearing-cbp before you travel. The website provides information about traveler entry forms, which agricultural products are allowed and prohibited, what items are dutiable, and other information about the entry process.

TRUSTED TRAVELER PROGRAMS – GLOBAL ENTRY

Global Entry is a risk-based approach to secure and facilitate the entry of pre-approved U.S. citizens, lawful permanent residents of the United States and citizens of some foreign partner countries. The program allows frequent international travelers who have passed a background check the use of an automated kiosk to clear passport control and provides an expedited exit lane out of the CBP processing area. In addition to being open to eligible U.S. citizens and lawful permanent residents, CBP has Global Entry arrangements with 18 partner countries to facilitate travel.

The current foreign partner countries include Argentina, Bahrain, Brazil, Colombia, Croatia, Germany, India, Mexico, The Netherlands, Panama, Singapore, South Korea, Switzerland, Taiwan and the United Kingdom. Eligible citizens of these countries may apply for Global Entry at <https://tftp.dhs.gov>.

Enrollment on Arrival (EoA) is a CBP program that allows Global Entry applicants who are conditionally approved to complete their interviews upon arrival into the United States. The EoA program eliminates the need for a Global Entry applicant to schedule an interview at an enrollment center to complete the application process.

When exiting your international flight, upon entering the U.S. Customs and Border Protection area, follow signs to a dedicated EoA lane. CBP officers will complete your Global Entry interview during your admissibility inspection.

Trusted Traveler Programs (TTPs) are committed to providing a fast, safe and secure arrival experience for our members. TTP is piloting innovative touchless, biometric facial comparison technologies and upgrading existing kiosks to continually enhance the arrival process. GE Biometric Facial Comparison technologies leverage facial biometrics to confirm traveler identity, check Trusted Traveler Program membership and ensure that there is no derogatory information on the traveler in law enforcement databases that would require additional scrutiny or discussion with an officer.

Incorporating biometric facial comparison technology into the GE process has eliminated the need to take fingerprints and scan the travel document, thereby enhancing the traveler experience and streamlining the inspection process. Typical processing time using legacy technology can take up to a minute or more, while processing time using biometric facial comparison technology is generally less than 10 seconds.

TTP has upgraded over 80 percent of existing GE kiosks to leverage the benefits of facial biometrics to provide an expedited and streamlined arrival experience that decreases GE member and officer touchpoints. All kiosks are expected to be updated with biometric facial comparison capabilities in the coming months.

TTP recently completed an initial pilot of the GE NextGen Processing Technology Systems at Los Angeles International Airport and is preparing to expand to additional locations by the end of the calendar year. Overall, the use of facial biometrics has streamlined processing times and will eliminate the need for a paper receipt.

DEPARTING THE UNITED STATES

At select airports, CBP has partnered with airlines and airports to implement a facial biometric boarding process. When departing from select U.S. airports during international travel, passengers pause for a photo at the departure gate. CBP's biometric facial comparison service will automatically compare the new photo of the traveler to images that the traveler has already provided to the government, such as passport and visa photos, to streamline the boarding process.
